Highlights

- Introduction of a mask-aware DNN methodology for k-space interpolation from under-sampled ‘k-space’ data.

- Enhancement of generalization capacity and resilience against variations in both the acquisition process and anatomical distribution.

- Provision of experimental evidence substantiating improved robustness, particularly in clinically pertinent regions, utilizing the publicly accessible fastMRI dataset.
