An accidental error occurred in the text of the Commentary ‘Call me on my mobile phone...or better not?—a look at the INTERPHONE study results’: on page 696, second column, line 26 from the top, the word ‘lower’ should be ‘higher’ lest the sentence makes no sense. The sentence should read as follows:

Since the participation rate among controls was lower than among cases, this pattern of response to the request for participation introduces a higher frequency of regular phone users among controls than among cases.