Abstract—The present-day organizations are mostly bothered about gaining customers and their attention also most importantly retaining them for a longer duration. Guerilla marketing is one such marketing technique that makes use of unconventional or unique means of attracting customers. More than investment these techniques are more dependent on the creativity and innovation of the person designing the campaign and executing it. It is a low-cost strategy that helps to attract customers quickly with an element of surprise and buzz. Guerilla marketing has been taken as an independent variable where consumer purchase decision happens to be the dependent variable and its sub dependent variables being loyalty, frequency of buying the same product again and again. Guerilla marketing varies from traditional marketing as it’s creative and unique at the same time it allows mass coverage on a large scale by spending the least amount of money on the same. It allows the firms to express their views about the product without putting much money or efforts. This research was more quantitative in nature. The sample size under consideration being 783at 95% confidence level. The study proves the point that Guerilla marketing does affect consumer purchase decision and their level of brand awareness.

I. INTRODUCTION

In the present era of heavy competition marketing has become an inevitable for any company irrespective of its size and form. The main aim of any marketing strategy is to attract and retain the customers and make them purchase their products. It may sound easy and simple but practically it is very difficult because of the variety of options available to the customers. Henceforth companies are at a compulsion to come with marketing and advertising strategies that teach the targeted customers and also become a motivational incentive such that they don’t think about the others options available around them. There are various marketing strategies that help company achieve this objective and one among them is Guerilla marketing.

A company sorting for an economical and budget friendly strategy at the same time one which leaves a huge impact on the minds of the customers then guerilla marketing happens to be the best choice.

In the present era is we see companies marketing and advertising their products a lot of new techniques and approaches are followed in order to reach out to their targeted customers.

Therefor in this huge lot there is a high possibility of most of the companies and their techniques going unnoticed in this ad war. So it is very essential for every company to portray themselves and reach their customers in their own unique and stronger way which looks apart and different from the techniques of their competitors. Guerilla marketing also has become beneficial to both small and medium sized enterprises and global players.

Guerilla marketing is a prominent marketing technique that focuses on low cost unconventional marketing tactics that yield maximum results. There are various variants of guerilla marketing like relationship marketing, real time marketing, expeditionary marketing, one to one marketing and viral marketing which helps to reach the targeted customers easily and effectively.

Guerilla marketing is about creating an impact on the customer’s mind through a surprise and creating a considerable amount of social buzz. This form of marketing is good at making a far more valuable impression on the consumers when compared to the traditional form of marketing. The main reason behind this is that guerilla marketing aims to strike the customers at a more personal level.

Developing a guerilla marketing concept and advertisement requires lots of innovativeness and the company has to pool in a completely new concept focusing on the targeted group of customers. The concept must be such that it steals the eyes of the targeted customers and focuses them to think of the product. A unique strategy strengthening the brand having a greater effect on people needs to be put into action.

Objectives:

1. To get an outlook on the entire concept of guerilla marketing
2. To assess how far the people get influenced by guerilla marketing strategies
3. To analyze the impact of guerilla marketing strategies towards customers purchase decision
4. To evaluate the economic benefits of using guerilla marketing strategies

II. REVIEW OF LITERATURE

Guerilla Marketing can be perceived as a variant of marketing communication (MC) that has a due impact on all categories of consumers. It is generally initiated for the purpose of gathering consumer attention through various modes such as direct marketing, PR and advertising (Miller 1993). In their continuous desire of satisfying their needs consumers are witnessing a completely newer concept of marketing communication. And the above concept makes use of various tools like newspapers, magazines, TV, radio, billboards and internet in order to grab the attention of the consumers on a Continuous basis. In most of the companies all these variants of modern marketing are combined into one Integrate marketing communication (IMC). While all of the organizations compete for sustenance it’s for the novel advertising method of Guerilla advertising and marketing came to rescue which even resulted within the boom of black markets and faux products (Back et al.2008).

Lun O. and Dr Yazdanifard R(2014) in their research paper titled “Guerilla Marketing: A successful business model for Xiaomi” pointed out the fact that the organizations are moving away from the traditional techniques of marketing, promoting and advertising in order to be unique and different from the rest of the clan. And in their effort to be unique, Guerilla marketing happens to be the best and extraordinary promotional effort and effective course of action for Xiaomi.

Ahmad Nawaz (2014) in his study detailed that guerilla marketing has a prominent influence on the purchase decision of the consumers and is apt for any type of company. Guerilla Marketing happens to be type of marketing techniques that resorts to unconventional promotional efforts that turns a product into brand to be remembered. Another popular variant of guerilla marketing stealth marketing that includes a number of various other techniques like celebrity marketing.

Prasanna D Raju (2013) stated that advertising plays a important role in influencing the consumer purchase behavior. Advertising and marketing modulates the consumer purchase decision by giving them useful data regarding the product through different mediums. Advertising endows the consumers with maximum satisfaction on their purchase decision as they have complete knowledge regarding the product that they have purchased. As without advertisements the consumers end up having only partial knowledge about the products and hence end up getting dissatisfied on their purchase.

Hahiz Muhammad Arshad, 2014 in his studies on consumer buying decision and their interest towards mobile phones revealed the factor that the above two mechanisms or phenomenon were highly affected by advertisements. Promotions in the form of advertisements create a opinion regarding the product through different mediums. Advertising and marketing modulates the consumer purchase decision and brand awareness. How consumers react to this new and unconventional medium of marketing.

The main intent of the paper is to examine the impact of guerilla marketing techniques on the consumer purchase decision and brand awareness. How consumers react to this new and unconventional medium of marketing. The previous literature details the fact that guerilla marketing techniques have a positive and profound impact on not only the purchase behavior but various other factors relevant to business as well.
