Millennium Challenges and Transformation of Natural Principles in Blake Morrison’s And When Did You Last See Your Father?: A critical Approach

Alidou Razakou Ibourohima Boro

University of Parakou, Benin

Received: 14 Oct 2021; Received in revised form: 25 Nov 2021; Accepted: 05 Dec 2021; Available online: 18 Dec 2021

Abstract—The main concern of this scientific paper is to make a thorough study of unavoidable juggernauts that torment English people, but balance the world in the autobiographical and contemporary novel of Blake Morrison’s And When Did you last See Your Father?. In the course of the implementation, I, through a rigorous demonstration, indicate the trial that human beings must face through some conversions and current endeavours. Moreover, I display the impacts of technologies on human beings’ state of mind in the twentieth century. To acquire those outcomes, I have applied to our investigations Narrative Fiction, New Historicism and Critical Discourse Studies theories.

Keywords—Life; Family; Principles; Change; Technologies.

Résumé—L’objectif principal de ce travail de recherche est de faire une étude approfondie sur la force irrésistible et inévitable qui tourment les anglais, mais qui équilibre la vie dans le roman autobiographique et contemporain de Blake Morrison qui s’intitule: And Whendidyou last See Your Father?. Dans l’exécution de cette étude, nous, à travers une démonstration rigoureuse avons indiqué que les êtres humains font face à des situations dans certaines conditions trouvent les voies de sorties ou de se tirer d’affaires. En outre, nous avons exposé les impacts de la technologie et contraintes sociales sur l’état d’âme les êtres humains au vingtième siècle. Pour obtenir ces résultats, nous avons appliqué cours nos investigations des théories telles que la Narration de Fiction, la Nouvelle Historicisme et Études sur Critique du Discours.

Mots Clés—Life, Famille, Principes, Transformation, Technologies.

I. INTRODUCTION

In his work entitled Exploring social life, James M. Henslin claimed:

> All of us, at least to some degree, want to understand social life. If nothing else, we want to understand why people react to us as they do. We may want to know why some boast and tell lies, whereas others will undergo personal hardship to tell the truth.¹

To some extent his statement means that social flaws like civil rights, gender discrimination, lack of education, covetousness can be considered as consequences of the non-respect or ignorance of natural principles. Because around the world there are natural and non-natural principles or standars that people must respect. Among the natural ones, there are some that people like timeuse

---

¹James M. Henslin, Exploring Social Life, USA: Pearson, 2004, p. 1
II. THEORETICAL PERSPECTIVE

In term of theoretical framework and through our tweaking, many theories have been listed to scan the understudy topic. However, the squeamishness of Blake’s novel and the tenet of designing research work are two closed elements that conduct to the implementation of this paper.

First of all, we apply to And when did you last see your father? critical discourse studies theory for two reasons. The very first one is about type of the novel that we deal with. It is an autobiography novel or memoir in which Blake writes about himself and his family’s concerned. Yet, self-presentation is one of the important section of critical discourse studies and throughout this theory, most speakers begin their speech with a self-presentation that tends to focus on their various social identities. In addition, “Memoir” comes from the French word for memory. It’s a literary genre of in which the author writes about his or her memories, usually going back to childhood. So, the study process of the novel under study combines two important literary elements such as memoir and self-presentation which refer respectively to cognitive and first singular pronoun that are part of implementation of the book itself. For instance, through Critical discourse study, there are cognitive structures that are divided into three parts as followed memory or mind, mental models and Social cognition. Van Dijk’s (2014)’ theory completes Greenblatt (1982)’s new historicism in the matter of century ideology and era’s implication of this research’s enactment.

In fact, new historicism and human beings reactions, behaviours, disease and death depend on the period. The ins and outs of the findings based on this topic are hang on the issues of past and the present day. New historicism, is a literary theory which purposes to cognise or understand intellectual past through literature, and literature through its social context.

The type of Blake’s novel, the generation of the writer and the attendance of the narrator himself in the book And when did you last see your father? entitle me the use of Narrative Fiction: Contemporary poetics. According to ShlomithRimmon-Kenan.

———. "And when did you last see your father? critical discourse studies theory for two reasons." In Millennium Challenges and Transformation of Natural Principles in Blake, edited by Alidou Razakou Ibourahima Boro et al., IJEIS-2021, 6(6), (ISSN: 2456-7620). https://dx.doi.org/10.22161/ijeis.66.26

Footnotes:
1. http://www.discourses.org/OldArticles/Critical%20Discourse%20Studies.pdf on September 10th, 2020 at 17: 50
2. https://literaryterms.net/memoir/ on September 10th, 2020 at 17: 54
3. http://www.discourses.org/OldArticles/Critical%20Discourse%20Studies.pdf on September 10th, 2020 at 16: 15
4. https://benjamins.com/catalog/z.184.79dj on September 10th, 2020 at 12: 54
In the third book of Plato’s Republic Socrates posits a distinction between two ways of rendering speech: diegesis and mimesis. The characteristic feature of diegesis is that the poet himself is the speaker and does not even attempt to suggest to us that anyone but himself is speaking (1963, p.638). In mimesis, on the other hand, the poet tries to create the illustration that is not he who speaks.6

So, in terms of contemporary literary aspects and while allowing for the narrator presents himself and other, it seems compulsory to use Narrative Fiction: Contemporary poetics in order to be well understood through my scientific paper. While allowing for all of the details related to the nature of the era throughout the century’s stakes of the issue the novel understudy and its writer himself, to sum up, my investigation on Blake’s And when did you last see your father? rests on three literary theories.

III. EXTENSION OF BRITISH FAMILY AND POPULATION

As a matter of fact, the issue of companions and Blake’s concept about people suit living conditions in the twentieth century and unveil the rebuilding of the British first social institution. According to the Webster’s Beginning Dictionary, the word companion came from Latin that means “camrade”. “Camrades can be brought as a people who share bread or eat together”7. Suppose that in Blake’s family is a normal one as the others around the world and takes also British community realities into account, so there are members like children, mother and father and then there is no active actor as member of the family who can behave as human being, bring feeling and deserve care. Unfortunately, Blake declared: “Dog brought out sentimentalist to him.”8 In the light of this kind of union of compassion and while interpreting the quotation “Gunner and Terry lasted all my childhood, and after their died my father did without dogs for a while, in homage”9. Unbelievably, by allowing for the highlight points related to love, friendship and sympathy, Blake’s family has undergone slight transformation in the matter of number of members and feeling for others. I guess from this attitude of Blake’s father that consist of taking care and feeling sympathy to animal that there is an additional member of the British family in Blake’s fiction who is the dogs during the twentieth century. A dog is an animal that is often kept as pet or used to guard or hunt things. In British community during the twentieth century, dog is love and cannot be separated from people. This dog plays multiple and multiforme roles in British people’s life through Blake Morrison’s fiction. It even interests in the narrator and he goes so far saying “I reckon to win on the security question, pointing out as ungleefully as possible that Nikki had been in the house when it was burgled”. In the matter of security challenge, the narrator pinpoints a contemporary concern which is related to the stealing. Today, the question still exists because we need an uncorrupted guard who can secure out offices and living and even goods and places. Even the policy makers advocate to the governments the use of dog’s services to control their ports and airports so that to check drugs and other fraudulent goods.

The issue of security and household keeping become more and more important and then English people live with natural watcher. Man as watchman can be corrupted or can demand the involvement of many other investments and additional anxieties, people can even be corrupted. The use person as watchman prevents British people from having an official private life in terms of work-life balance and freedom. Blake, despite his misunderstanding through some his grievances with his father to a certain extent, as a safety precaution invites the readers to make natural trail by adopting not only people in order to make peace in their living environment but also involve dogs in terms of security preservation.

The actors involving into the British householders over pass four types, Blake justifies such a thing by saying: Sandra was Pat’s predecessor, the maid before. She ’d come from a broken home in Scotland in 1963. I was thirteen. She was nineteen. My sister had just gone away to boarding-school. We were alone a lot, sharing the same teenage stuff -Titbits? Top of the Pops. She was young for her age after the traumas back home, and my father had felt protective, treated her as a

---

6Shlomith Rimmon-Kenan, Narrative Fiction: Contemporary poetics, p.106
7Webster’s Beginning Dictionary, P. 137
8Blake Morrison, And When Did You Last See Your Father?, p. 36
9Blake Morrison, And When Did You Last See Your Father?, p.35

IELS-2021, 6(6), (ISSN: 2456-7620)
https://dx.doi.org/10.22161/ijels.66.26
Ibid, p.13

12Blake Morrison, And When Did You Last See Your Father?, p. 9

13Ibid, p.9

14Ibid, p. 9

15Ibid, p.9
her wife and imposed his decision regarding time saving. “Benjamin Franklin was America’s scientist, inventor, politician, philanthropist and business man. He is best known as the only Founding Father who signed all three documents that freed America from Britain” 16. In the light of this claiming related to Benjamin Franklin, the author of “time is money”, Arthur as character of Blake’s novel tries to implement this business man’s ideology in British literaturein terms of time efficiency. In this way, allowing for the background of Benjamin Franklin, Blake pinpoints in his fiction the importance of time and suggests to the new generation the new plan of time management. Arthur not only determines the notion of time through his feeling and desire but uses it as his own and makes of it a fiddle.

On the assumption that “time is money” lacks of additional and useful details. In fact, the squabble between the Arthur, Blake, his son because of time seems sound and even emphasises on the lack of details about time in British socio-economical contract. Time has created a lot of damages to Blake’s parents to some extent. To begin with, time is a natural thing and no one can handle all in all its trend since the context is not clarified in the matter of road security, and even in natural disaster like diseases and health. First, in the light of the novel understudy title, When did you last see your father, of Blake Morrison and as far as Blake’s father’s habit is concerned, there are two elemental principles that caraterise Blake’s father, the nature of time that is male and the kind of means of transport used to be on the focus of time or to the respect time keeping. For Blake’s father, in the family, man must respect all thing concerning time. Reason why Blake emphasises on the argument between father and his mother who says why does he do this, why he cannot wait like everyone else17. Arthur, the father of Blake does not respect suggestions or advise made by his belove because of time. He also maltreats his children because of while. The narrator is complaining by stating that his sister and he were scrunched together as usual18. Through the title the novel the word “when” evoke time, the narrator claimed: “All those years of helping others with their golf club or pub dining-room extensions- projects quietly resented by my mother because time given to others was time denied to the family.”19 Whereas the main characters Blake and his father most of the time emphasise on time, so in the accordance of the topic understudy, time in Mr. Morrison’s novel is the unbreakable core in the socio-economical contract of the British people. When we deny something, we state that it is not true. So, one of the elements related to British family contract breaching is time, people of Britain are abide by respecting time-keeping. Blake’s uses the way the characters of his novel apprehend time to show his audience that the British socio-economical contract is based on time efficiency and justifies that the native of the United States of America, Benjamin Franklin’s assumption that says that time is money lack of additional and capital information related to the British family. Blake’s fiction reveals that the notion of time management is from the homeland of English people and the one the United State of America is a fake one.

V. ETHICS APPRAISAL AND THE BRITISH PEOPLE IN BLAKE’S FICTION

The twentieth century’s days, due to its social changes or shifts and its men’s obligations throughout their permanent juggernaut in people life, there are tail-fin that most of the time do not necessarily depend on them since a hungry man is an angry man. So, regarding the relationship between son and father, Blake has made some statements that deserve comments and analysis. If not, how can we understand “God Almighty, Arthur, why do you have to do this? Why can’t you wait like everyone else? What if we meet something coming the other way? Now my sister and I do the same, hide ourselves below the seat”20. This claiming of the narrator, first of all proves that Arthur despite his wife and children’s grievances and because he even has no consideration to them. This way of behaving witnesses silent war between father and other member of the family and sounds the behaviour of selfishness or narcissism. Secondly Arthur is a selfish man and his behaviour of dictatorship prevent him from listening to the members of his family.

The selfish people are like a plague that compromises the remain ones regarding authoritarian because dictatorship, self-governing, self-importance, self-defense and so on. Accordingly, all possible vices come. That is why Blake said: “I’m happy to pay the difference”21. Here Blake says indirectly what his father is, a corruptible one. Unfortunately, the steward is warming and had refused any briberies or anything corruptible material things or corruption from Blake’s father’s side regarding offence by just advising Arthur that henceforth check the colour his ticked and then took the right entrance.22 Considering the kinds of statement of And When Did You Last See Your Father?, the writer sounds

---

16 http://www.benjamin-franklin-history.org/benjamin-franklin/ on Saturday, 30th, 2021 at 9 AM
17 Blake Morrison, And When Did You Last See Your Father?, p.11
18 Ibid, p.10
19 Ibid, p.44

20 Ibid, p. 11
21 Ibid, p. 12
22 Ibidp. 13
evocative to some extent and it is compulsory regarding the role played by literature in today’s life to measure morality’s degree in Blake’s fiction. It is possible to corrupt other administrative persons rather than this steward. However Blake’s father is a corrupted one and even advocated to his citizens since charity begins at home. That is why at the twilight of Blake’s childhood he has undergone the side effect of his father’s bad behaviour and his social juggernaut. Blake has been humbled and claimed: “My childhood was a web of little scams and triumphs.”23 Here, Blake talks of the highlights of his life with his father. Most of the time, father has never used the right way to find solutions to his anxieties or disquiets. This statement of his own son Blake is the official source that proves that his father is a crook man and uses all ways to intimidate people. Arthur as character, is like a plague in British society since he tends to contaminate the trustworthy ones and starting from his own son. Blake himself tells the by protecting a little bit his daddy’s personality and emphasises that his father had failed only once24. Blake is also a liar as his father because “little triumphs” is opposite to “failed only once”. Blake is right by being so because as son he must receive the education from his father and implement it in his life.

The novel of Mr. Morrison portrays the flaws of the twentieth century’s people custom or behaviour on the four lands of isles. This experience of life should be an example to right the attitude of the current ones because if the life is plenty of scams and swindlers the new generation can perish. The tangible example in Blake’s fiction is the back of Sandra who had been maid of Arthur. “She ‘d married the boyfriend but the marriage hadn’t lasted-only the son had, grown up now. Sandra stayed close to my parents”25. Sandra’s marriage does not last for two reasons. Because of her covetousness since her husband, Jeff26 was a carpenter and does have means to support her and their child but also her teenagerhood had been compromised through sexual underground of long time.

We went on having sex for six months, a year still she found a proper boyfriend and left. It was usually on Friday evening during term-time, when no one else was in the house, though we took our chances when we could. We’d be up in her bedroom, under the open widow, listen for the sound of my parents’ car coming up the drive, the door slamming in the yard or the key in the front door.27

In the light of the novel understudy and allowing for one of the keyword life ethics, the people of Blake have no good education as regard Spinoza in MémoRéférencesDictionnaire de Philosophie: ethics is a science that studies modes existence according to good and bad (my own translation)28. Following this definition of Spinoza, Blake’s characters way of life is not a good one. Blake’s behaviour has been jeopardized by the one of his own father afterward compromised the one of maid of his father, Sandra, who has been for long secret girl friend of Blake himself, who is now complaint of his father’ behaviour. All in all, it is extremely regrettable that the words like scam, prostitution, lie, dictatorship, discrimination, selfishness, covetousness undermine the world built by Blake’s fiction. At little difference, this is the way the member of the British community behaved in the twentieth century.

VI. CONCLUSION

Blake’s fiction has through his characters focused on time that is as the progression of events from the past to the present into the future. In the process, the action of the characters shows that no one can not maintain time. Basically, time is a natural thing and free gift from God and despite our state of mind, our concerns or emergency we can not make it stop since it is demension of reality use to describe event. Here, its saving, apart from its drawback like corruption, accident, has created marital conflict and even discrepancy between man and woman. Blake Morrison’s fictional novel is one of the vivid one that unveil what sons cannot tell face to face to their fathers or daddies. Because sons must respect their parents in order to receive God blessing as it is mentioned in the holy Bible. And When Did You Last See Your Father? reveals social shortcoming in the matter of ethical issues and shows the different consequences through its characters that humiliation is the reward of bad education or dictatorship. In this light it clearly shows which kind of world is going to built and emphasises mainly of the British community through fiction. In Black fiction we have time to discover the sacrilege concerning people dignity. We also have time to know the consequences of covetousness in the matter of time saving, and money saving. We agree and have been confirmed that like father

---

23 Blake Morrison, And When Did You Last See Your Father?, p. 14.
24 Ibid, p. 14.
25 Ibid, p. 180.
26 Ibid, p. 182.
27 Ibid, p. 184.
28 Jacqueline Russ, Mémo Références Dictionnaire de Philosophie, P.97.
like son, and we must pay attention to all we undertake in matter.

REFERENCES

[1] Morrison, Blake. And When Did You Last See Your Father?: Great Britain: Granta Books, 1998.
[2] Grooten, J. & Steenbergen G. Jo. New Encyclopedia of Philosophy. New York : Philosophical Library, 1972.
[3] Henslin, M. James. Exploring Social Life, USA: Pearson, 2004.
[4] Russ, Jacqueline. Mémo Références Dictionnaire de Philosophie. Paris : Bordas, 1991.
[5] Rimmon-Kenan, Shlomith. Narrative Fiction: Contemporary poetics.
[6] DHAHA, N'De Tano. “LA MISE EN RECIT DU RÉEL À DRY WHITE SEASPOL D’ANDRE BRINK”, Multifontaines, Vol no 3, PP33-48. Janvier 2016.