Occupational COPD - the most under-recognised occupational lung disease?

- Occupational COPD is still under-recognised
- Clinicians should be aware that work can contribute significantly to COPD
- COPD can have a substantial impact on work ability
- There is a need of primary, secondary and tertiary prevention
- Clinicians and Occupational Physicians/OHS can collaborate to achieve an effective prevention of COPD

Murgia & Gambelunghe, Respirology 2022, https://doi.org/10.1111/resp.14272