What Makes Women Sick: Gender and the Political Economy of Health

Lesley Doyal draws on a wide range of disciplines to highlight the limitations of medical models in understanding global patterns of health and disease in women. Examining in detail the impact of sexuality, fertility control, reproduction, domestic labour and waged work on women's well-being, she shows how gender divisions in economic and social life affect their experiences of illness.
Lesley Doyal Macmillan, £11.99, pp 280 ISBN 0 333 54205 3 Lesley Doyal's book provides an excellent introduction to women's health issues in a social and economic context. Discussing a wide range of topics from abortion to venereal disease, from alcohol to violence, she shows how these problems can be fully comprehended only in relation to the broader social and economic problems of women.

What makes women sick? To an Ecuadorean woman, it’s nervios from constant worry about her children's illnesses. To a woman working in a New Mexico electronics factory, it’s the solvents that leave her with a form of dementia. To a Ugandan woman, it’s HIV from her husband’s sleeping with the widow of an AIDS patient.
