1. Introduction
As General Secretary Xi Jinping has pointed out, "Poverty alleviation is not the end, but the starting point for a new life and a new struggle." Now, standing at the starting point of new life and new struggle, Daliangshan people are full of confidence and look forward to embarking on a new journey of happy life and a better future. Therefore, now and for a long time to come, how to consolidate and expand the achievements of poverty alleviation by all means is a very realistic problem.

As a Chinese saying goes, “The boundless road is boundless, but the trade wind is blowing.” Standing in rural poverty engines and revitalization of the two strategic transition, with two goals converge period in one hundred, the strong leadership of the communist party of China, the crucial foundation and successful experience out of poverty and the great spirit, the confidence in the new historical starting point to pursue a better life and spirit, we will be able to consolidate and expand good, the fruits of poverty and enable those who have lifted themselves out of poverty and those living in poverty alleviation areas to take new steps on the road to common prosperity (Li, 2014).

1.1. Handmade Embroidery of Liangshan Yi Nationality

Handmade embroidery of the Yi nationality in Liangshan is a national traditional handicraft with a long history, exquisite craftsmanship and high practicability. In the process of Liangshan crossing one thousand years, it embodies a strong traditional culture of the Yi nationality, which has been inherited and carried forward continuously.

In Liangshan, Yi embroidery has a wide base of masses. There is a wisecrack that “Yi strong men can drink more and Yi beautiful women are better than hand embroidery”, which reflects from the side that Yi embroidery is a basic skill commonly mastered by Yi women in Liangshan. Yi hand embroidery has a long history and exquisite patterns. In recent years, Yi embroidery has gradually developed into a new characteristic industry for the masses of Liangshan Prefecture, especially Yi women, to get rid of poverty and become rich. The majority of Yi women can create wealth and weave a happy life with their industrious and dexterous hands without leaving their homes.

1.2. Research on Fast Fashion at Home and Abroad

Based on the aesthetic characteristics of Liangshan Yi costumes, this paper intends to explore concise and modern Yi costume design in depth in combination with modern fashion aesthetic standards, seeking the collision between tradition and fashion, and through the “fast fashion” mode of e-commerce channels, so that Yi costume culture can go to a larger market and be accepted and loved by more people. Therefore, the combination of Yi’s handmade embroidery and e-commerce “fast fashion” fashion brands is of great practical significance to help Yi women consolidate and expand the achievements of poverty alleviation (Gao, 2019).

In recent years, maintain fast and stable economic growth in China, the residents’ income and consumption level under the background of rapid increase, the booming Chinese clothing consumption market, many international famous “fast fashion” clothing retail brands, such as Spain’s ZARA, C&A, H&M, the Netherlands, Sweden and Japan’s UNIQLO, etc., have entered the Chinese market. It not only occupies China’s offline market, but also competes fiercely with China’s local clothing brands on online e-commerce platforms. The concept of “fast fashion” has only emerged in recent years, and it also brings Chinese consumers a different shopping experience. In China, a number of “fast fashion” brands have also been developed (Liao & Mou, 2020).

1) “Fast fashion” refers to a marketing mode, mainly in the clothing industry and originated in Europe and the United States. It is characterized by fast product renewal, low price, fashionable and novel styles, which are popular among modern youth, especially professional white-collar workers, and swept the world. The brand “ZARA” belonging to the Spanish Inditex Group is the earliest “fast fashion” brand, and the “GAP” of the United States, the “H&M” of Switzerland, and the “U-Niqlo” of Japan (Uniqlo) are representative fast fashion brands. With the development of China’s economy, more and more foreign clothing brands have settled in major cities in China, leading the trend of “fast fashion” in China. During this period, a number of domestic fashion brands have transformed and grown rapidly and entered the ranks of “fast fashion”, such as “Meters·Bonwe”, “Semar”, “Mix-Box” and so on.

Fast fashion brands are mainly targeted at middle and low-end consumer groups. Those consumers who are highly sensitive to fashion and do not have the ability to consume international high-end products are the loyal customers of these fast fashion brands. They usually judge fashion trends through information such as international fashion weeks and new product launches of international brands, and quickly design and produce the latest fashion clothes, which are put into the market and into the hands of the public, and make use of the creativity and popularity of international brands to create a buzz for themselves. They update their products very quickly, like Zara, every two to three weeks, and they never repeat. Consumers can always find the most fashionable clothes with designs similar to the luxury brands of the season, in line with the popular aesthetic, and at low prices, so sales of fast fashion brands have never been a concern for companies. The Zara brand is not the largest number of Inditex stores, but it accounts for 60% of the group’s sales.

With the development of global economic integration, cultural differences and aesthetic orientation in different parts of the world are gradually converging, and the slogan of “fashion without borders” is becoming louder and louder, which promotes the accelerated expansion of fast fashion brand market and spreads all over the world in just over 20 years. Spanish brand Zara, a pioneer of fast fashion, has developed into one of the most successful brands in the world, with nearly 1900 stores in 87 countries by the end of 2013. And the development of other fast fashion brands is more fierce, has the potential to surpass. With the advantage that its price is 30% lower than Zara’s, H&M has more than 3000 stores, and its annual sales volume has ranked first in the industry for several times. However, China, the world’s largest emerging market, has huge market potential due to its large population, which attracts major fashion brands from all over the world, including major fast fashion brands. Since the first Uniqlo store opened in Shanghai in 2002, many fashion brands have landed in major cities in China and gradually spread to second—and third-tier cities. The total number of stores of top ten international fast fashion brands in China has exceeded 1900. One of the secrets of the rapid development of foreign fast fashion clothing brands is that they can accurately grasp the fashion pulse and occupy the market first. The product update speed is so fast that it can be used to add the popular elements into the clothes and put them on the shelves in about 14 days. Compared with foreign fast fashion brands, domestic brands have a long production cycle and slow renewal. In recent years, China’s local clothing brands have developed slowly, but many foreign brands have developed rapidly after entering the Chinese market and occupied a lot of market shares. A series of fast fashion brands, such as H&M, have captured a large number of consumers with their fashion, cheap price and other advantages. Therefore, in the future development of domestic local clothing brands, they should try their best to shorten the online cycle, accelerate the updating speed, and conduct fast and effective supply chain management. Only in this way can they grab the market share first.

2) According to statistics, during the 13th Five-Year Plan period, the number of Internet users in China increased from 688 million to 989 million, an increase of 43.7% in five years. By December 2020, China had 989 million Internet users, and the Internet penetration rate had reached 70.4 percent. With the development of the Internet, users’ values are upgraded, bringing about changes in users’ economic behavior. The first stage is “people search information”, that is, users search information; the second stage is the development of “information seeking”, namely UGC (User Generated Content). As to promote the personalized features of web 2.0 concepts, from the original give priority to in order to download and upload, pay equal attention to the interaction of the user, the user is not only the content of your visitors, is also the creator of the web content, thus showing “emotional connection, identity, birds of a feather flock together, birds of a feather flock together”. Correspondingly, network e-commerce has also moved from the dominant direction of “from things to people” based on commodity price driven 1.0 era to the “from people to things” based on trust relationship recommended 2.0 era. In the 2.0 era when UGC has reached a scale of 22 million and generated 30 hours of online content per minute, the marketing of apparel businesses, especially e-commerce apparel businesses, will take on a new look, that is, content + e-commerce = brand + sales, including content output, form development, channel expansion, operation realization, promotion and communication, etc. It presents the operational characteristics of “socialization, fanization and content”.

1.3. The Unique Application Value of This Paper

So far, there are few fashion brands with ethnic elements as the dominant design among Chinese national fashion brands, and the well-known Yi fashion brands are even less. Therefore, the establishment of a market-oriented fashion brand combining Yi embroidery technology is one of the important goals of this paper. Liangshan Prefecture has all kinds of minority style clothing brands, most of which are mainly presented with local ethnic characteristics. However, there are few changes in clothing types, few style categories, low fashion degree and low innovation ability, which are missing a piece in the fashion brand market.

The inheritance, protection, development and innovation of Liangshan Yi costumes are not only of great and far-reaching significance for displaying the new image of the Yi people, enhancing the popularity and influence of the Yi culture, and enhancing national cohesion and pride, but also conducive to the Yi costume cultural brand entering a broader market. However, from the perspective of integrating into contemporary life, it is an indisputable fact that some of the traditional costumes of Liangshan Yi nationality, which are thick, heavy and large, are not in harmony with the lifestyle and social rhythm of modern people and appear outdated.

In today's diversified modern aesthetics and public needs, innovative design and technological upgrading are the driving force for the sustainable development of Yi clothing industry. Modern society is a commercial society, any product must carry out a unified planning, design, publicity and marketing; this is in line with the law of market operation. For a long time, Yi clothing has been produced by cottage industry workshops, which are sold by themselves or on commission. There is almost no participation of trade associations, chain operation, e-commerce and other modern sales means, and no effective marketing system and network platform of Yi clothing cultural industry has been formed. The apparel industry of Yi nationality has a small scale, lacks leading enterprises with strong driving force and influence, and lacks strong market competitiveness, low economic benefits and prominent brand effect, so it is difficult to adapt to the needs of market development.

Yi hand embroidery and electrical business fast fashion clothing is the combination of development, in protecting the integrity of the traditional Yi embroidery and core skills on the basis of, by improving the material design, improvement, improvement of production, improve quality, so as to improve the traditional Yi embroidery apparel market competitiveness, and the development level of the Yi nationality clothing culture will go much more market, was accepted and loved by more people. Sales of Yi embroidery fast fashion clothing through online and offline channels, promotion of Yi embroidery fast fashion clothing products and brand promotion through exhibitions, competitions, exhibitions and competitions. Through the establishment of an Internet promotion platform, relevant products are recommended to attract investors to invest in Yi embroidery fast fashion clothing related projects. These are of great practical significance to consolidate and expand the achievements of poverty alleviation in Liangshan.

2. Research Content

2.1. Research Objects and Objectives

This paper intends to study the combined development of Yi's manual embroidery and e-commerce fast fashion clothing. The goal is to help the development of Liangshan Yi characteristic industries and make contributions to consolidate and expand the hard-won achievements of poverty alleviation.

2.2. Key and Difficult Points in This Paper

Study and comb out the traditional cultural connotation of Liangshan Yi embroidery, combine with the concept of clothing design, and deeply explore the combined value of Liangshan Yi embroidery and fashion clothing according to the fashion market.

Liangshan “Yi embroidery” has a long history, exquisite skills and high practicability. In the process of Liangshan’s one thousand years, “Yi embroidery” embodies a strong traditional culture of the Yi nationality, and its craft has been inherited and carried forward with the development of history.

Liangshan Yi nationality area covers a vast territory and is one of the main settlements of Yi people. Due to living customs, natural environment, historical development and other factors, the Yi culture has its own characteristics, “Yi embroidery” is the same. Under the premise of fully understanding the cultural connotation of Yi nationality, designers of clothing brands apply “Yi embroidery” to their designs, which can better spread the enthusiastic, thriving and trend-leading regional image of Liangshan Yi nationality area.

Yi hand embroidery has exquisite patterns and a long history. As an important advantageous characteristic industry in Liangshan Prefecture, it has the advantages of congenital products and acquired platform for the development of e-commerce. Handmade embroidery of Liangshan Yi nationality, the color symbol of this nation not only carries the ancient culture, but also is a part of the cultural soft power of minority areas today (Zheng & Zhou, 2016).

The Yi embroidery on the costumes of the Yi nationality in Liangshan, as the typical representative of the costumes in the “Yi Nuo” dialect area of Liangshan Prefecture, has rich and colorful patterns, and the common patterns include animal patterns, plant patterns, geometric patterns, and utensils patterns.

The common animal patterns are crab foot pattern, sheep horn pattern, cow horn pattern, horse tooth pattern, cow eye pattern, chicken comb pattern, etc., mostly based on cattle and sheep patterns, and these patterns are mostly drawn from the production and life of the Yi people, cattle and sheep are the main poultry. It is an expression of the life of the nomadic ancestors and represents happiness and wealth.

The root, stem, leaf and fruit patterns of various plants and crops, such as fern striata and sun pattern, are common plant patterns. Fern striata pattern and sun pattern are common patterns of Meigu Yi costume. One of the oldest plants in the world, the fern striata was an important source of food collected by the ancestors of the Yi people, who often relied on it to survive famines and called it “lifesaver grass”. The sun pattern shows the worship of the Yi people to the sun.

Among the geometric patterns, the sun and moon, wave, whirlpool, rainbow and star patterns are common, which are used to express the worship of celestial bodies and the worship and awe of nature, and to pray for and avoid disasters in nature, so as to bless the Yi people to have a safe year after year, free from natural and man-made disasters, and good harvests in agriculture and animal husbandry.

The patterns of utensils, such as flaming sickle pattern, Guozhuang pattern and stone steps pattern, are common patterns in Yi’s embroidery. These patterns are commonly used in the daily life of the Yi people. For example, the flaming torch is an important fire-making tool in Meigu region, while the toast seal is a symbol of power, nobility and wealth.

Embroidery has always been a common decorative technique for high-grade clothing since ancient times. Chinese traditional cheongsam, Japanese kimono and European wedding dress have been extensively used in this craft.

In high fashion, the most concentrated use of embroidery technology is the cuff, collar, chest, trousers, etc. Colored embroidery is the most commonly used technique in traditional Chinese cheongsam. Colored silk threads are used to produce rich color changes through overlapping, juxtaposition and interlace, making the flowers on the dress lifelike, just like ink painting.

The traditional embroidery craft is varied, which brings a kind of traditional luxury and beauty to the clothes and reflects a kind of elegance. Even a small embroidered cotton handkerchief contains delicacy, which has been the conventional application direction of embroidery craft for a long time. So far in 2014, there are few fashion brands with ethnic elements as the dominant design among China’s national fashion brands, and the well-known Yi fashion brands are even more empty. Therefore, the creation of market-oriented fashion brands combining Yi embroidery technology is also one of our research objects and main goals.

2.3. Feasibility of This Study "Yi Embroidery"

Is the main component of Liangshan Yi costumes, and mastering the skills of “Yi embroidery” has become a magic weapon for Yi women to get rid of poverty and become rich. Among the registered poverty-stricken households in Liangshan Prefecture, poverty-stricken Yi women account for 57% of the poverty-stricken population in the prefecture, which is 10.5% higher than that in the whole country. For this special group, the causes of poverty are complex, the depth of poverty is extraordinary, the difficulty of poverty is great, and the risk of returning to poverty is high. This special group is not only the fortress of the achievements of poverty alleviation in Liangshan Prefecture, but also one of the keys to consolidate and expand the achievements of poverty alleviation.

In Liangshan, “Yi Embroidery” has a wide base of masses. There is a wisecrack that “Yi strong men can drink more and Yi beautiful women are better than hand embroidery”, which also reflects from the side that “Yi Embroidery” in Liangshan is a basic skill commonly mastered by Yi women. In recent years, as the Women’s Federation of Liangshan Prefecture has implemented the Opinions of the All-China Women’s Federation on “Women’s Poverty Reduction Action” in the Fight Against Poverty, “Yi embroidery” has gradually developed into a new characteristic industry for the people of Liangshan Prefecture, especially Yi women, to get rid of poverty and get rich. The majority of Yi women can create wealth and weave a happy life with their industrious and dexterous hands without leaving their homes.

Fast fashion is a sales mode in which fashion clothing enterprises quickly respond to the fashion design on the runway and produce products closely to the latest fashion trend, which are sold to the stores at low prices and mainly targeted at mainstream consumers. Liangshan Prefecture has all kinds of minority style clothing brands, most of which are mainly presented with local ethnic characteristics. However, there are few changes in clothing types, few style categories, low fashion degree and low innovation ability, which are missing a piece in the fashion brand market.

With the continuous popularization of the Internet in China, the development of the Internet and mobile Internet in China has gradually matured, and even unlimited traffic has begun to appear. While the threshold of using the Internet is constantly lowered, Internet products are increasingly filling our lives. At the same time, mobile terminal users continue to increase, even becoming twice as many as PC terminal users, and people’s demand for simplicity, fast and interesting also increases. From fragmented reading to short video watching, China’s “We Media” also develops rapidly.
