1. INTRODUCTION

Education is knowledge learning, skill, and habit of a group of people that passed down from one generation to the next through teaching, training, or research. Education is often being the case under the guidance of others but also allows an autodidact element. Every experience that has a formative effect towards the people's perspective, feeling or act can be determined as education. Commonly, education is divided into phases/levels such as pre-school, elementary school, middle school and then college, university or internship.

According to the constitution of No. 14 of 2005, lecturers or teaching staff are professional educators as well as scientists with the main role to transform, develop, and spread the knowledge. On the other hand, that will be interesting if it is interpreted into Islam's understanding that the definition of lecturer/educator is anyone responsible towards the development of the students. In Islam, the persons most responsible are parents. At the beginning stage, the role of educators is a pure duty on the hand of both parents, however as the time goes by as today, the role of the parents as the educators have been put under the full responsibilities of the school, since it is likely more efficient and more effective. NurUhbiyati provides a definition of an educator, it is an adult who has responsibility to guide or assist the students towards their physical development as well as the soul in order to achieve their maturity, in order to be able to conduct their main role in this world as Allah's creature, the Caliph of the earth, as social creature to be an individual hat can be able to stand alone.

If we explore deeper into that educators, have a very close relation to the attitude (Attitude) and become an affiliate of ethics. The term teacher code of ethics of professionalism first formulated in writing by the National Organization of Education Association (NEA) in 1929 in the United States that a code of ethics for the teaching professions code of ethics several times changed and improved in the last years 1941, 1953 and 1963. In the days of the Dutch East Indies, education in Indonesia is directed in accordance with the will of the invaders, so that the people are static, and the teachers pengajarpun are very dominant in the process of education and teaching students that are authoritarian, participatory, and humble.

According to Al-Nahlawi, in order that the present educators can carry out their duties as Allah has been entrusted to the Messenger and their followers, the educator must have these following qualities: (1) Rabbani in setting the goals, behavior, and mindset; (2) Ikhlas (sincerity); (3) patience; (4) honesty in conveying what had been called by God; (5) equipping themselves with knowledge; (6) mastering variety of teaching methods; (7) the ability to manage a student; (8) understanding the psychology of students; (9) being responsive to a variety of conditions and development of the world; and (10) fairness. If we explore deeper, an educator is strongly related to attitude and ethical affiliation. The term code of ethics professionalism for educators was first initiated in writing by the National Education Association (NEA) in 1929 in the United States in terms of the code of ethics for the teaching profession. This code was changed several times and improved in 1941, 1953 and the last in 1963. In the period of Dutch colonial, education in Indonesia was directed in accordance with the willingness of the colonial. Thus the people were static, and the educators were over dominant in the process of education and teaching was in the state of authoritarian, un-participatory, and student being under-estimated.

Al Jam`iyatul Washliyah is a community organization that continuously strives to improve the norms and ethics as well as the courteous with its Ittifak charity namely education, missionary endeavor, and social charity that founded by students from Maktab Islamiah Tapanuli Medan, North Sumatra on 9 Rajab 1349 H coincided on 30th November 1930 and the organization was named by Al-Jam`Iyatul Washliyah (Al Washliyah) by a great Moslem Scholar named Shyeh H. Muhammad Yunus. The foundation of the movement is Quran through Surah Asshof 10-11 verse, which means: "O you who believe, do you want me (Allah) to show commerce that rescued you from a painful punishment? Believe in Allah and The Messenger and work as you mean it (jihad) in the path of Allah with your wealth and yourselves, that is the better for you if you understand". Noting this call and guidance from Allah as stated in the previous verse, thus it can be understood that in order to achieve the success life in this world and the afterlife at least it must be fulfilled by these two following conditions, the first to believe in Allah and The Messenger, while the second is fighting in earnest (jihad) by donating the property, power, mind, knowledge, expertise, skills and others. Jihad is not only about going into a battle but deepen their knowledge and develop education is part of jihad as well. From the explanation, the researcher intends to explore the theoretical and implementation of how the ethics of educators Ethics of lecturers based on the Perspective of Islam in Al-Washliyah Universities.

1.3. The Nature of Educators
Educator is one of the keys to lead the students to achieve their goals. The issue of educator often experiences the up and down of trust towards the characters and personalities of the educator himself, it is rare to find that an educator takes the wrong action during the process of educating the students. However, it depends on the educator's personalities, do they have the pure willingness to improve the nation or determining education merely as a business. According to Al-Abrasyi that Abawi-yah is (1) fatherly, (2) Communicative; (3) Providing the learning material according to the student's capability; (4) have a sense of responsibility towards the society; (5) being a role model of fairness, loyalty and excellence; (6) sincere ; (7) broad-minded; (8) Always discussing the knowledge; (9) Teaching and manage classes well; (10) Increasing knowledge with the spirit of the new sciences; (11) Strong commitment; (12) Healthy; and (13) strong personality. (Tafseer, Education Knowledge, p. 84.)

1.4. Educator's Ethics
Ethics is the principles regarding a right and wrong that is done by every person in determining each choice as the guidance for their behavior. The word ethos is taken from the word "Ethos" (Greek) which means the character, decency character or custom. Ethics deals with concepts owned by individual or groups to assess whether the actions that have been done is right or wrong, good or bad. Meanwhile, based on the perspective from the Latin word ethics is "ethnic", which means the habit, as well as in the Greek language "ethikos" that means a body of moral principles or values. There are two kinds of ethics that must be understood on determining good and bad human behavior:

1. Descriptive Ethics, the ethics that seeks critically observation and rational attitude as well as human and Descriptive ethics brings the decisions making about behavior or the chosen attitude.

2. Normative Ethics, the ethics that seeks to put the various attitudes and ideal behavior patterns that should be owned by a man in this life as something valuable. Normative ethics give an assessment as well as provide norms as the basis and framework of action will be decided.

Educator's Ethics in Quran and Hadith, Educator/Lecturer concept according to Ibn Jama'ah is the scholar as the Human Microcosms and can be used as a typology the best creature (Khair Albariyah). Based on this statement, the position of a scholar is one level under the level of the prophet. This statement is considered towards the argument that those Islamic scholars are the most devoted and most obedient to Allah SWT. From the concept of the Islamic scholar, Ibnu Jamaah carries out the concept about educators. Thus, Ibu Jama'ah

With the perfect-minded, he can get the further understanding towards the knowledge, and with the good morals, he can be a role model for his students as well as the physically strong that he can conduct the duty of teaching and learning process effectively and meet the expected result.

Thus the random sampling is not suitable for this research that upholds the depth of information. The emphasized aspect in qualitative methods and a large number of samples are impossible to achieve the depth of the information.

3. TECHNIQUE OF DATA ANALYSIS

The qualitative data is actually started at the time of the researcher began the data collecting, by sorting out the important data and not. The parameter of the importance of the data is related towards the contribution of the data to answer the research focuses. In the field research can be happened that due to the interesting obtained, the researchers change the focus of the research. It can be done since the cycles of qualitative is cyclical. Thus the focus that has been designed from the beginning could be changed in the middle process of research implementation as the researcher find a very important data, which may previously unimaginable.
