I. INTRODUCTION
Indonesia has many works of art, one of which is Movie, and Indonesian Movie itself has various types of genres, and the unique Gundala Movie has a superhero genre, this Gundala Movie was made by Sutradari Joko Anwar and under the Studio Screenplay Movies, this Gundala Movie itself is an adaptation of comics Superhero made by Hasmi and made in the Movie version [1]. This Gundala itself tells of a young man who gets strength from lightning, wherewith lightning; this young man can eradicate crime. In the release of this Movie, various kinds of media were made ranging from teasers, trailers, posters, websites, and merchandise, of all the media these movie posters are the most used media because they are easily accessible and look attractive because this poster features a renewed Gundala costume with a gripping background that makes it feel dark and mysterious in the poster [2]. Research on this Gundala Poster uses the semiotics of Ferdinand de Saussure [3], which is widely used in other studies as well, where the visuals that emerge must be captured through the meaning of Denotation and Connotation so as to generally explain the purpose of this poster and can be a reference for research related to semiotics in poster media [4].

In Barthes's theory, he developed semiotics into two levels of signification, namely the level of denotation and connotation. Then Roland Barthes groups the codes into five codes, namely hermeneutic codes, semantic codes, symbolic codes, narrative codes, and cultural or cultural codes [1]. Eco analyzes the systemic 'relations' between treasury of signs, rules of combination (code), as well as concepts (signified), which related to it [5]. Barthes states that combining signs or codes can produce meaningful expressions [2]. Saussure described the relationship between the signifier (signified) and signified [6]. This study uses theories from Saussure and Barthes where there is a relationship between the signs and then analyzed connotatively and denotatively then produces the purpose of the visual then applied to the Indonesian superhero movie poster.

The results of this research develop the theory of semiotics in applying into Indonesian superhero Movies so that the meanings and signs in the Movie posters interpreted and understood.

II. METHODS
The method used in this poster research is descriptive analysis where it will separate each visual that appears on this poster then study the meaning of each visual, what are the meanings and signs.

Ferdinand de Saussure's semiotics divides the visual into two meanings namely denotation and connotation, both describe the relationship between signifier and signified, even though each of them describes a different meaning [7]. If the denotation describes the true meaning of the marker, the connotation illustrates the meaning of the two markers. Where each of these visuals will be interconnected and will explain the meaning of the whole visual [8].

A. Data Collecting
The first stage in this research is data collection, where the data collected from various sources related to the keywords of this research, and in this research, the data collection mostly takes sources from the Internet.

B. Data Processing
After the process of collecting data done, then the data will be processed by adjusting to the literary theories about Semiotics. After that, the picture in the poster divided into several visual elements, then the visual elements explained in meaning.

III. RESULTS
The results of the analysis Gundala movie poster visual analysis using the Semiotics technique in Figure 1 are:
