INTRODUCTION

Writing skill is one of the productive skills in mastering the language. Writing is the process of expressing ideas and feeling using a proper language. Many students are still getting difficulty in expressing ideas through good grammar and diction. Errors happen when someone creates improper expression due to memory limitation, fatigue or emotional strain. The speaker is actually able to correct his/her improper expression. When the writer or the speaker creates improper expression due to imperfect competence in the target language then it is called an error.

Synopsis is one of suitable writing material for higher level students because they can share their ideas, opinion, and response also critics through synopsis writing for film or drama. Synopsis is a brief summary or overview. Synopsis is a short description of your screenplay. It consists of a plot summary of the screenplay on a sheet of paper and usually contains no more than 400 words. It highlights the main characters and what they go through during the story.

A good synopsis will focus a lot of attention to conflict and resolution. Kennedy, Kennedy, & Muth (2011) stated that a synopsis can help the reader to recall and to review the story’s specifics. Film synopsis must be original in plot and focus on the most important theme. Writing synopsis in English language is not an easy writing activity for English foreign students as Indonesian students.
They always find the difficulty to share their ideas and arrange them in a comprehensive way. The students often make several errors in their writing because they do not know when to use the appropriate grammar and diction.

The definition of error analysis in relation to language errors is a technique for identifying, classifying, and systematically interpreting the errors students make in L1 learning (foreign languages) using theories and procedures that are related to the language. The primary focus of error analysis is to know how the students’ effort could provide an understanding of foreign language. Conducting the analysis, the writer needs to focus on language components: morphology and syntax. Morphology is scientific study about word structure and formation rules. Morphology relates to the construction of words and parts of words. Morphology is the identification, analysis, and description, of the structure of word (word as units in the lexicon are the subject matter of lexicology). While words are generally accepted as being the smallest unit of syntax, it is clear that in most languages, word can be related to other words by rules.

According to Usha & Kader (2016), there are some morphological errors in English language in specific areas named as affixation-related errors that referred to these terms: (1) affixation-related misuse of either prefixes or suffixes, (2) morphological errors as a result of wrong insertion word structure, (3) compound related errors is a morphological process which consists of the combination of at least two free morphemes such as a bookshop, (4). conversion-related errors are errors in the written responses of the subjects, (5). using of plural in noun phrases.

Surface strategy taxonomy highlights language errors based on the way the surface structure changes. Dulay et al (1982) classifies language errors based on Surface Strategy Taxonomy into four groups, namely (1) omission errors are caused by the absence of items that should exist in a given language unit; (2) the error of addition is an error caused by the presence of a grain or element that should not be required in a given language unit; (3) misformation is an error caused by the formation of a particular incorrect language unit construct; and (4) misordering error is caused by the placement or sorting of inappropriate elements.

Based on the problems above, the writer is interested to analyze the students' morphological errors in their writing especially in film synopsis writing. Dulay, Burt, & Krashen (1982) stated that Error analysis is an applied linguistics approach used to identify areas of great difficulty for second language learners by applying a system of formal distinction to differentiate between the learner's first language (L1) and target language. The use of error analysis is very important in reflecting students’ English learning competencies. It becomes an important instrument in first and second language learning research to improve English learning outcomes.
RESEARCH METHODOLOGY

This study is a descriptive qualitative research. In technique of analyzing the data, the researcher uses the procedure of Brown (2003) that is error identification, error classification, and errors explanation.

FINDING AND DISCUSSION

Based on Surface Strategy Taxonomy, there are four types of errors found in writing: omission, addition, misinformation, and misordering. This strategy will be explained morphological errors in English language in specific areas as the following table:

Table 1. Morphological Errors in Omission

| Students | Morphological Errors in Omission | The Correct Morphological Form |
|----------|----------------------------------|--------------------------------|
| CM       | She missed the person that loves her so much and she thinks she can’t find someone else who can treat her like Gerry did to herself. | She missed the person who loves her so much. She thought that she couldn’t find someone else who could treat her like what Gerry did to her. |

| VP       | Lily desperate, not only saving Rosaleen, but flee from a life she can no longer endure. | Lily is desperate, not only to save Rosaleen, but to flee from a life that she cannot be longer endure. |

Omission errors in sentences are caused by the absence of language elements that should be present in the sentence. In the film synopsis written by the students found there are some errors in the omission aspect. Based on the results of morphological error analysis on the omission aspect, there is in the absence to be to glue the adjective as in Lily desperate that Lily is desperate. In addition, the absence of ‘word liaison’ in equivalent sentences as in Mbok Srini helpless can only cry that should be Mbok Srini is helpless and can only cry. Morphological errors at the omission level can lead to ambiguity of meaning in
A sentence that interferes with the meaning of semantic level.

Table 2. Morphological Errors in Misinformation

| Students | Morphological Errors in Misinformation | The Correct Morphological Form |
|----------|--------------------------------------|--------------------------------|

| VP       | T-ray is more concerned with its peach business, Compare to taking care Lily. | Compared to taking care of Lily, T-ray is more concerned with its peach business. |

Constructed sentence patterns with incorrect language units can lead to incomplete information delivery. In the construction of the sentence And it makes Gerry have to leave Holly alone forever resulting in messages to be conveyed to be confusing. The misuse of the word 'And' at the beginning of a sentence is a unit language error that causes difficulty in understanding unclear 'and' references with the equivalent sentence. In addition, 'have' as modality is not appropriate for the reference of a single third person in the sentence. The correct sentence is This condition makes Gerry has to leave Holly alone forever. Improper construction of sentences causes the meaning that is not in accordance with the intended purpose of the author.

Table 3. Morphological Errors in Misordering

| Students | Morphological Errors in Misordering | The Correct Morphological Form |

| VP       | Unfortunately the memory of the woman were not much left in Lily mind. | Unfortunately the memory of the woman was not much left in Lily's mind. |

The incorrect placement of language elements in sentence construction can lead to misordering errors. In the sentence, Unfortunately the memory of the woman were not much left in Lily mind; there is an incorrect grammar that is to be 'were' which refers to a single subject sentence. Incorrect use of 'were' should be 'was'. Besides 'Lily mind' refers to ownership but the phrase is not appropriate because it must be accompanied by apostrophe 's' into Lily's mind. Such grammatical errors lead to incomplete sentences.
Table 4. Morphological errors in Addition

| Students | Morphological Errors in Addition                                                                 | The Correct Morphological Form                                                                 |

| NK       | Landon not know what to do in making Jamie happy, he asked his mother, but he not find the answer. | Landon didn’t know what to do to make Jamie happy, he had asked his mother, but he did not find the answer. |
| VP       | When her mother dying, she was only four yo child.                                          | When her mother died, she was only four years old.                                                |

The addition error is a morphological error caused by the use of language elements that are not actually needed in the sentence. The following sentence is an example of morphological mistakes on the side addition of “the members of the crew are named Brock Lovett, Lewis Bodine, Bobby Buell, and Anatoly Mikailavich.” The use of the word named in the sentence is less precise because to be 'are' is sufficient to explain the sentence.

CONCLUSION

It can be concluded that there is still a morphological error in the students' written film synopsis. These errors appear in omission, misinformation, misordering and addition that can lead to confusion on the meaning of the sentence.
