I. INTRODUCTION
Advertising, derived from the Latin advertere which means "turn to" (Goddard, 1998), is a combination of art and communication in offering a particular product that use many visual signs and symbols to attract the consumers. Advertising is a conversation with consumers about a product by attracting attention, providing information, expressing added value, with the hope that the target audience will buy, try or do something (Moriarty, 1991). Of course, in an advertisement the application of signs, symbols and metaphors are very influential, it has a persuasive purpose and has its own uniqueness in conveying the intentions of the advertiser. Many advertisements are published in various media such as printed, radio and television. Ads that are published on television are now very easily to be seen through Youtube. Moreover, this media has a very broad and unlimited range. In advertisements, linguals which often found are unique and very interesting to study. The dense and clear language of advertising often makes the audience curious about the meaning. Especially in cigarette advertisements which strictly forbid to mentions “cigarettes” in their own advertisements and cigarette products that are considered interesting to be studied are Sampoerna Hijau cigarette products. Which cigarette products contain several scenes of "eccentric" and looks "low profile" in the ad. Without having to first look at the visuals, but just by listening the linguals, the audience can be attracted to listen to this Sampoerna Hijau cigarette product advertisement. The lingual satuals can be divided into seven, namely command sentences, question sentences, affective sentences, news sentences, topics, exciting sentences, and segments sentence or gatra and others.

In this study, using five editions of the Sampoerna Hijau cigarette advertisement, namely; Dateng Kondangan Edition, Selfie Edition di Kondangan, Minum Es kacang ljo Edition, Punnyaku Lebih Nikmat Edition and the Hijau Panas Edition. In this study the researcher used the Seven types of meaning theory (Leech, 1981). The seven types of meaning consist of conceptual meaning, connotative, collocative, social (stylistic), affective, reflection, and thematic.

Further explanation of those types of meaning are conceptual meaning is the cognitive content of words; it can be expressed by features or by primitives, connotative refers to what is communicated by virtue of what language refers to; thoughts provoked by a term when in reference to certain entities, collocative refers to what is communicated through association with words which tend to occur in the environment of another word; describes words that regularly appear together in common use (within certain contexts), social (stylistic) refers to what is communicated of the social circumstances of language use; where words are used to establish relationships between people and to delineate social roles, affective refers to what is communicated of the feelings and attitudes of the speaker writer; has to do with the personal feelings or attitudes of the speaker, reflection refers to what is communicated through association with another sense of the same expression; has to do with when one sense of a particular word affects the understanding and usage of all the other senses of the word, and thematic refers to what is communicated through the way in which the message is organized in terms of order and emphasis; concerns itself with how the order of words spoken affects the meaning that is entailed.

Researches that have been conducted on the meaning of lingual such as that conducted by Triandjojo (2008) entitled Semiotika Iklan Mobil di Media Cetak Indonesia, Prasetyaningtyas (2013) with the title Yang Lain Bersandiwara, Gue Apa Adanya!” Versi Topeng Monyet di Media Televisi and Pondaag (2013) whose research is entitled Analisis Semiotika Iklan A Mild Go Ahead versi “Dorong Bangunan” di televisi have not been too deep and focused on lingual elements only. Meanwhile, this research is expected to be able to thoroughly explore the types of meanings that are usually used in advertisements, especially Sampoerna Hijau cigarette advertisements, in conveying advertiser's implied messages. By using the theory from Leech, this research can be considered as one of the sources of reference in the field of semiotics, especially in the realm of lingual meaning in advertising in visual media.

Taking into the description above, therefore this research aims to find any lingual elements and meanings used by advertisers in “Sampoerna Hijau” Cigarette advertisements on Youtube.

II. METHODS

In this study, researcher collected the data with observation methods and for advanced, the researcher used techniques listen and record. Then in the analysis of research data using Agih method with the basic technique that is Bagi Unsur Langsung or BUL techniques. Agih method according to Sudaryanto (2005: 18) the determining tool is part of the language itself. The determinant tool in the framework of the work method is always a part or element of the object of the research object itself, such as words (ungars, prepositions, adverbs), syntactic functions (subjects, objects, predicates), clauses, syllables, pitches, and another. The basic technique of the Agih method, namely the Bagi Unsur Langsung technique or BUL, is the method used at the beginning of the analysis work is to divide the lingual unit of data into several parts or elements; and the elements concerned are seen as a part that directly forms the intended lingual unit. Based on the above sudaryanto also wrote that lingual satuals can then be divided into seven, namely command sentences, question sentences, affective sentences, news sentences, topics, exciting sentences, and segments sentence or gatra; and others. The driving force for the determinant is the power for the intuitive (linguistic intuition). The results of using the BUL technique for a lingual unit need not only be of one type; but can vary (Sudaryanto 2005: 39). The BUL method and technique are used by researcher to analyze the signs and forms found in Sampoerna Hijau cigarette advertisements so that they can easily classify these lingual signs and forms.

III. RESULT AND DISCUSSION
In an advertisement, it is not only visual that can convey the message from the advertiser, but there is also from verbal or lingual form which is a style of language that also supports implicit delivery of messages to consumers. In this Sampoerna Hijau cigarette ad, the advertiser uses three adult male characters called "Geng Ijo" as the main actors of the activities and uses some unique verbals in the ad that has specific purposes. In the Hijau Panaasss edition of the Sampoerna Hijau Cigarette ad, based on the above table, four sentence types are found, one noun and four types of meaning. The following explanation:

The phrase "aseek" is an adjective word and means reflection which is a reaction to the pleasure of the speaker because he is given a coffee drink.

The phrase "uh ... panas" is a declarative sentence that experiences the absorption of the subject ‘kopi ini’ and has a meaningful reflection because it is an expression of the reaction to feel the temperature of the coffee being drunk.

The sentence "ya bang panas" is a declarative sentence that is conceptual meaningful because the visual does indicate the state of the speaker who is sweating and waving his hands. This sentence experiences the absorption subject of ‘udara’.

The phrase "panass ... panass ..." is a declarative sentence and connotative meaning because heat here refers more to the 'sexy' heat. Speakers say ‘panas’ as if to imply that "the woman in front of us is indeed hot" aka ‘sexy’. This xperienced the absorption of noun phrases as the subject of ‘wanita ini’.

The phrase "excuse me, sir" is a declarative sentence which means the speaker tells him that he is leaving. And this sentence is conceptual meaningful because in the visual it is intended that the speaker really leaves the place. This sentence is subject to the ‘saya’ subject.

The phrase "okedeh" is a noun because it is interpreted as an agreement on a permit previously submitted by the listener. This word contains conceptual meaning because in the visual the speaker it nods as a sign of agreement.

The phrase “ehem, mau yang panas?” is an interrogative sentence and conceptual meaning because the speaker intends to give an object that is indeed hot.

The phrase "panas?" Is an interrogative sentence that is conceptually meaningful because the activity shown is related to high temperature. This sentence experiences the subject's ‘pancinya’ absorption an 'tanya 'question words

The imperative sentence “panaskan, coba dipegang” is a sentence intended for the listener to do what the speaker wants. Therefore this sentence also means affective.

The phrase " aku bisa nih" is a sentence of exclamation and meaningful reflection as the reaction of the speaker to see the listener attracted to the woman who is wagging her hair.

The phrase "aye punya lagi nih bang" is an affective meaningful sentence that is intended for the listener to see what the speaker wants to give.
