I. INTRODUCTION

Yogyakarta is a tourist city with a cultural background the strong one. The strength of Javanese culture, the number of special foods, goods crafts, and tourist attractions are the main attraction for the traveler. Yogyakarta's special food and handicraft items are a souvenir that is sought after by tourists. This thing became an opportunity for small industries to develop their businesses in terms of make a present.

Yogyakarta is also famous for its cuisine. Many tourists come to Yogyakarta just because they want to taste culinary in Yogyakarta. Local food and outdoor food are served in various restaurants to meet the needs of every tourist for food and drinks. But not a few tourists who choose to consume local food as a favorite food.

One area in Yogyakarta is Gunung Kidul Regency. Unlike the four other districts in the fertile and green Special Region of Yogyakarta, Gunung Kidul is a barren limestone hill that is always hit by drought. Located on the southern coast of Java Island, Gunung Kidul is a remnant of the sea in the past. But now Gunung Kidul is no longer synonymous with drought. The once barren and limestone mountains on the southeast side of the Special Region of Yogyakarta gradually turned green. Besides that Gunung Kidul also has many other tourism potentials.

In Gunung Kidul there are charming beaches which include Baron Beach, Krakal, Kukup, Drini, Sundak, Siung, Sadeng, Ngobaran, Ngrenehan and Indrayanti. In addition, there are also artificial forests, such as Wanagama (owned by Gadjah Mada University / UGM).

No less exotic are the challenging karts caves, beautiful stalactites/stalagmites and stunning underground rivers. In Gunung Kidul there are also caves scattered in various places. Some of them are connected, such as Pindul Cave, Japanese Cave. There is also a geological tour of Mount Purba Nglanggeran, the Ancient Bengawan Solo River. Tourism Sri Gethuk Waterfall, Bleberan, Nglanggeran.
In addition to the tourist attractions above, in Gunung Kidul there are also many tourist villages, including Bobung, Mojo, Garotan, Nglanderan, Bejiharjo, Bleberan, Umbulrejo, Wonosadi, Kemadang, Ngestirejo, Jelok, Sidoharjo, Kemuning, Mulo, and Turunan. The facilities in the tourist village are outbound, nature cruising, cave caving, river trending, plowing the fields, enjoying typical food. With this tourism village, local food is better known by tourists, both local and foreign.

In addition to the tourist attractions above, restaurants/restaurants are also a very important aspect in the development of the tourism industry. Various types of restaurants were developed, as well as various menus, both types of food and drinks served with a variety of innovative creations. The potential of this local cuisine can be a way or answer to start or open a tourism development effort in Gunung Kidul Regency through the development and marketing of culinary tourism products in Gunung Kidul Regency. Furthermore, a culinary tourism product development model must be made appropriate and adapted to the potential and strength of Gunung Kidul Regency.

II. RESEARCH METHOD
This type of research is included in qualitative research and quantitative research. Qualitative research is research that uses a naturalistic approach to search for and find understanding or understanding of phenomena in a particular contextual setting (Moleong, 2007: 3). Qualitative research questions two aspects, namely the research approach used is naturalistic, while the effort and goal are to understand a phenomenon in Denzin and Lincoln (Moleong, 2007: 3) state that qualitative research is research that uses a scientific setting, intending to interpret phenomena that occur. So that qualitative research is carried out in natural conditions and is a discovery. In qualitative research, researchers are the instrument or key. Therefore, researchers must have the provision of theory and broad insights so they can ask questions, analyze, and construct the object under study to be clearer. This research emphasizes food and is tied to values. Qualitative research is used if the problem is not clear, to find hidden food, to understand social interactions, to develop theories, to ascertain the truth of data, and to examine the historical development. While quantitative research according to Sugiyono (2011: 8) is research conducted by collecting answers from respondents or questions that are measurements of the variables studied.

III. RESULTS AND DISCUSSION
Based on its geographical location, Gunung Kidul Regency is one of 5 districts in the Special Region of Yogyakarta Province, with an area of ± 1,485.36 km2 or ± 46.63% of the total area of DIY, with administrative boundaries as follows: Northside: Klaten Regency and Sukoharjo Regency. To the south: the Indian Ocean. Westside: Bantul Regency and Sleman Regency Eastside: Wonogiri Regency.

Most of the agriculture owned by Gunung Kidul Regency is ± 90% rain-fed dry land which depends on climate cycles, especially rainfall. Irrigated rice fields are relatively narrow and most are rain-fed rice fields. As for mining natural resources in the form of batu kapur, batu apung, kalsit, zeolit, bentonit, tras, kaolin dan pasir kuarsa. Gunung Kidul Regency also has a fairly wide beach length located in the south bordering the Indian Ocean, stretching for about 65 Km from Purwosari sub-district to Girisubo sub-district. The potential of marine products and tourism is very large and open to be developed.

Most of the residents who live in Gunung Kidul Regency, especially in the area of natural attractions of this beach, farming and fishing livelihoods or all of which are obtained from nature that is sold by themselves and trying their own even though only small-scale like trading along the seashore. However, the potential of the surrounding area, especially the coastal tourism area is very large. Other potentials are the handicraft, food, and processing of agricultural products, all of which are very potential to be developed. For the sector culture, living conditions and cultural and artistic activities in Gunung Kidul Regency, general are still going well, seen from the efforts and activities of the community to maintain and develop culture and arts which exist. There also appears to be an attempt to re-explore the endangered culture and arts, as well as efforts to regenerate young people.

The existence of tourist objects and attractions in Gunung Kidul provides enormous benefits for the community around the tourism object itself and along the existing tourist transportation routes. These benefits are in the form of equitable development of the region and an increase in community income by establishing tourism such as food stalls/restaurants/food stalls. Gunung Kidul Regency has various types of food and drinks that are unique in nature and can even be said to be a popular food and drink that can be found in every place in the Gunung Kidul Regency. Based on the identification of regional delicacies in the Gunung Gunung Regency it can be concluded that the types and types of delicacies found in the Regency of Gunung Gunung are quite diverse from the main dishes (Sego abang, aneka hidangan ikan) and snacks(Thiwul, Gathot, gethuk goreng, cake thiwul, krecek telo, belalang goreng, belalang bacem, manggleg, rengginang telo, peyek jingkeng, rumput laut, peyek undurundur).
The potential of Gunung Kidul Regency in the culinary field is very diverse according to the characteristics of each region. In areas that produce a lot of fish such as Baron beach, Sadeng is often found simple food stalls that sell a variety of processed fish. In the Gunung Kidul region with low rainfall and rocky soil types, only rain-fed rice can flourish. Some of these rainfed rice types offer red rice with a unique taste, namely in the Semanu area. In Semanu, there is a food stall that serves as a special sego abang Gunung Kidul.
IV. CONCLUSION
