Responding to COVID19 in France
Yves Charpak

Y Charpak
1Société Française de Santé Publique, Paris, France
Contact: yves.charpak@orange.fr
While it is hard to predict what will have happened by the time of the conference, this round table will be tightly templated and coordinated. Each speaker will briefly address the challenges experienced by that country and the actions taken, and focus on explaining why those actions happened in order to draw comparative lessons about public health politics and governance.

Responding to COVID19 in Russia
Elizabeth J King

E King1
1School of Public Health, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, USA
Contact: ejking@umich.edu

Responding to COVID19 in Austria, Germany and Switzerland
Thomas Czyprionka

T Czyprionka1
1Institute for Advanced Studies, Institute for Advanced Studies, Vienna, Austria
Contact: tczyprionk@ihs.at

Responding to COVID19 in Italy
Michelle Falkenbach

M Falkenbach1
1Health Management and Policy, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, USA
Contact: michfalk@umich.edu

Responding to COVID19 in the European Union
Anniek de Ruijter

A de Ruijter1
1School of Law, University of Amsterdam, Amsterdam, Netherlands
Contact: a.deruijter@uva.nl

Responding to COVID19 in France
Yves Charpak

Y Charpak1
1Société Française de Santé Publique, Paris, France
Contact: yves.charpak@orange.fr
While it is hard to predict what will have happened by the time of the conference, this round table will be tightly templated and coordinated. Each speaker will briefly address the challenges experienced by that country and the actions taken, and focus on explaining why those actions happened in order to draw comparative lessons about public health politics and governance.