Abstract

This research discussed the use of assertive illocutionary acts uttered by the main characters in Hacksaw Ridge movie by Mel Gibson. The data was taken from the utterances of the main character Dessmond Doss which contained assertive acts. The utterances were analyzed with the theory proposed by Searle to identify the types of assertive acts. This research was descriptive qualitative. To collect the data, the observational and non-participatory method was applied. The data collected was analyzed with pragmatic identity method and pragmatic competence- in equalizing technique proposed by Sudaryanto. In the research result, It showed that there were 28 utterances of assertive acts uttered by Dessmond Doss in Hacksaw Ridge movie. The data were found 1 data for asserting, 11 data for reporting, 4 data for complaining, 1 data for suggesting, 2 data for boasting, 2 data for explaining, and 7 data for denying. The type of reporting became the most uttered by the main character to the other character in the Hacksaw Ridge movie. It because the main character was a soldier and the event took in the battlefield where the war happened.

Keywords: assertive act, movie, pragmatics.

1. INTRODUCTION

Humans are a social creature in this world, which means that they can not live without someone else. They need to cooperate with each other. To cooperate with each other, they need to form communication for their daily lives. To make a communication they need a way which use language. Every human in this world have their own variety of language to communicate depends on their culture or where they lived. They used it to reveal what their think or their own opinion. Language has the advantage of delivering all things the speaker desire to convey (Virginia & Ambalegin, 2021). In short, language is a medium to share ideas, thoughts, etc.

The communication between speakers must be well-communicated to make the conversation understandable. To make it well-communicated, the speakers require to analyze the context when they do the conversation. Pragmatic is one of aspect study to discuss about context meaning in utterances (Sembiring & Ambalegin, 2019). This includes the place where the thing is said and who says it. According to Yule (2014), pragmatics is a study of speakers’ meaning of words in an utterance, and Levinson (1983) said pragmatics is the study of language use which is the study of the relation between language and context. It means that communication is not just depending on the literal meaning of words, but also to recognize the context and the words’ meaning in conversation.

According to Yule (2014), a speech act is action via utterance. It means that people can perform an action from the utterance they said. According to Searle & Vanderveken (1985) the speech act is categorized into five categories: Assertive, Declarative, Commisive, Directive, and Expressive. In this paper, the researcher only focused on the Assertive speech act. In illocutionary act, assertive speech act is included. Leech (1983) said that assertive is the sentence with purpose to show or express the truth about information what speaker want to express or tell. In this speech act, speaker utterance is bounded by truth when uttered. In addition, According to Yule (2014), assertive speech act is speech act that show or express the speaker's beliefs about information. So the sentence uttered by speakers in conversation, the speakers are believed the sentence they uttered are true or truth. According to Searle’s theory (cited in Levinson 1983), assertive acts are categorized into some types, which are asserting, reporting, explaining, suggesting, boasting, complaining, and denying.

First type is asserting, it is the way to convey the truth or the factual information to the hearer or listener. Assertive can be found in different forms, which are claiming, stating, affirming, and else.

Example: “I’m important too, Mom. I’m important too” (Indraswuri et al., 2015)

Reporting is the second type of assertive illocutionary act. The purpose is to inform the hearer about something that already happened by the speaker. The speaker tries to tell the hearer something that has already been done by the speaker.

Example: “Ok, here we go, I've found photos of two of them” (Rohmah, 2020)

Explaining is the way to describe something in long sentences or utterances in detailed form. The speaker utters long sentences to make what something clear enough to be understood by the hearer.

Example: “Forget about the fact that the operation is dangerous, or that it would hurt, or that I might not want to have something cut out of me. But if I only have one kidney, than what happens to me? What if I need it? And am I really never allowed to play sports or be a cheer leader or get pregnant?” (Indrawasuri et al., 2015)
Another type is suggesting. Suggesting is the way to convey an information can be chosen for the hearer as an option. In this type, the speaker conveys an idea to the hearer that can be considered as an option or choice for the hearer.

Example: “The legal age or emancipation of a minor is 14 in the state of California. It’s the law, you might want to check it. Anna’s 11, you’re three years early” (Indrawasuri et al., 2015)

Boasting is usually used by speaker to express their pride. This type is not considered as neutral category in politeness, It because boasting usually informal or rude.

Example: “Because I recognised it and you did not.” (Suyono & Widiastuti, 2021)

Complaining is sixth assertive category that has assertive and expressive function. It is usually used by the speaker to express dissatisfaction or annoyance with something difficult.

Example: “He still treats me like I'm his assistant. He'll always treat me like I'm his assistant.” (Rohmah, 2020)

The last type is Denying, it to refuse to admit the truth. This assertive category is usually used by the speaker to negate or oppose the proportion.

Example: “No, I wasn’t go out” (Dewi & Qomariana, 2021)

Assertive acts phenomenon occurs in everyday life as it is bound to language and society. However, this phenomenon can also happen in a movie as it is a reflection of real life experience. In the movie, the character needs language to convey about their thoughts and to do their role. By saying the utterances, the assertive acts phenomenon also can be happened.

The researcher took “Hacksaw Ridge” movie as the data source. It is because the assertive acts phenomenon can be found in the main character Desmond Doss’s utterances. Hacksaw Ridge is a biographical movie about war. The movie was made in 2016. The movie was directed by Mel Gibson and the writers for this movie were Andrew Knight and Robert Schenkkan. The movie focuses on the story of Desmond Doss about his experiences in World War II. Desmond Doss was an American soldier combat medic and religious Christian who refused to use a gun or any kind of weapon. For service during the Battle of Okinawa, Desmond Doss was awarded the Medal of Honor and became a conscientious objector to be awarded.

In the Hacksaw Ridge movie by Mel Gibson. The writer will analyze utterance from main character Desmond Doss which contain Assertive speech act. For example:

Sgt.Howell: “Where the hell are you going Doss?”
Desmond: “Still more wounded out there, Sarge”

The conversation above involves Sgt.Howell and Desmond Doss. Sgt.Howell saw Desmond still hesitated to retreat from battlefield eventough all the troops were ordered to retreat from there.
Sgt. Howell asked “Where the hell are you going Doss?” Then Desmond replied “Still more wounded out there, Sarge”. This utterance is Assertive act especially report utterance. It is showed in Desmond’s utterance that he informed Sgt. Howell about war victim in battlefield.

In this research, the researchers found two research related to assertive acts. First, the research by (Izar, Nasution, & Ratnasari, 2020). They found out the type of assertive acts that appeared in “Mata Najwa” program on episode “Gara-Gara Corona”. This research also used theory proposed by Searle (1970) to identify the type of assertive acts. The result revealed reporting that occurred mostly. In contrast, this research used TV program as the data source when the researcher used movie.

Next, the research was done by (Ramadhani, Indrayani, & Soemantri, 2019). Their research also the same to analyze the type or categories of assertive acts found in Donald Trump’s political speech. Also, the researcher used Searle (1970) theory to classify the type of assertive acts. In this research also used descriptive qualitative method. The result of this research revealed asserting as the most type of assertive acts that occurred in the speech.

In this research, the researchers had similar objectives with the two previous research, to find and analyze the type of assertive act. However, this research used movie as the data source. The movie that researchers used as the data source was “Hacksaw Ridge” movie directed by Mel Gibson. This movie were published in 2016. In this movie, the researchers found the assertive acts which occurred in Desmond Doss’s utterances. Therefore, the researcher was interested to find out the type of assertive act that occurred in this movie.

2. RESEARCH METHOD

Descriptive qualitative was used in this research. Creswell (2018) said that, qualitative research is a research for exploring and understanding the meaning individuals or groups ascribe to a social or human problem in the society. Also, the assertive speech acts by the main character is the data sources which categorized as the common phenomena in the society.

For collecting data of the research, the observational method by Sudaryanto (2015) was used. He stated that the method is done by observing the data. The researcher will use non-participatory technique which was done without researcher involvement in the data source. There are some steps which the researchers did in collecting the data. First, the video was watched from streaming platform. Second, the researcher watched the video until finish in order to get all the data. Third, transcribing all Desmond Doss’s utterance in the video which contains assertive acts. The last is classifying the data which type of assertive acts found in the data source based on Searle’s theory.

After collecting the data, the researcher analyzed the data with pragmatic identity method by Sudaryanto (2015). Because the data source was utterance, this method implemented. Also from the same expert, the researchers applied Pragmatic competence-in equalizing technique by Sudaryanto (2015). There are few steps to analyze the data. First, the researcher would identify the highlighted sentences. Second, the data would be analyzed based on the type of assertive acts by using Searle (1970) theory. Finally, the finding revealed what type of assertive acts used in Dessmond Doss’s utterance in “Hacksaw Ridge” movie and the data were presented descriptively by showed the highest and lowest type of assertive acts found in data source.

3. FINDINGS AND DISCUSSION

Then, Desmond explained that he didn’t have any problem doing his duty by wearing a uniform, saluting the flag but he just couldn’t take a gun because he didn’t want to take human life by his hand.

DATA 2

Judge: “Then why you contesting at it? Why is it so important to you, given your refusal to even touch a gun, to serve in a combat unit?”
Desmond: “It because when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor, I took it personal. Everyone I knew was on fire to join up including me. There two men in my hometown who were declared failed four straight killed themselves because they couldn’t serve. I had a job in a defense plant and could've taken a deferment but that aren’t right. It didn’t right to me when other men should fight and die, when i just be sitting in the house safe, I need to serve. All I have is the passion to serve as a medic while in the middle with the other guys, no less danger, just when everybody taking life, I’ll be saving it. With the world so set on tearing itself apart, it doesn’t seem such a bad thing to me to want to put a little bit of it back together.”
Inside the courtroom, The Judge asked Desmond why this combat unit was important to him for joining even though he can’t touch a gun. Then, Desmond explained to the Judge that he wanted to serve his country by his ability as a medic, even just a tiny bit of his ability could be useful in the war.
