An aesthetic theory holds that every artwork has a general structure can be received an equivalent, namely harmony structure and rhythm structure. Function harmony in a work of art which puts pressure and categorizes elements language aesthetic, so the work art is unique [3]. The aesthetic value of all art objects or events contains three fundamental aspects which include form or appearance, weight / content, appearance or performance. The definition of the form concept includes the basic form or element and structure. The content or weight has three aspects, namely the atmosphere, ideas, and messages. Art performance has three elements that play a role namely talent skills, and means or media [4].

Aesthetic aspect is born through the relationship of form and content. The form is structure, content is a message. The form is how to convey while the content is what is conveyed [5]. The presence of a dance form will appear in the design of motion and the pattern of continuity of motion that takes place in space and time. The form of dance can be seen from the overall presentation of dance, which includes a combination of dance elements (motion, space, time) and various supporting elements of dance presentation (musical accompaniment, theme, dress, makeup, place, and lighting) [6].

The content of dance is an invisible idea or appreciation. Without an idea, art will be present without weight, while a form is a product of interweaving the expression element or concrete manifestation. Through the form, the audience can appreciate the content of the dance [7]. The content or weight of an art object or event includes not only what is seen merely but also what is perceived or lived as the meaning of the form of art itself. Art weight has three aspects: (1) idea, (2) atmosphere, and (3) message. The idea is the result of thought or concept, opinion or view about something. The dance atmosphere can be formed by its constituent elements, namely, motion, musical accompaniment, dress, and lighting which are formed in such a way and combined with one another so that it becomes a unity which creates a certain beauty. Message in dance is expressions of the soul which are reflected in thorough motion.

Performance is intended as a way of how art is presented to those who enjoy it. There are three elements which play a role in art performance: (1) talent, (2) skills, and (3) means or media. Talent is a unique potential ability owned by someone which is obtained because of his offspring. Skill is proficiency in implementing something that is achieved by doing practice. Means or media is those that influence art performance, such as stage, light, color, and loudspeakers.

(1) The initial part is preceded by the introduction of gamelan music, then followed by Arum Manis song and the come up of dancers to the stage until stop / pose after Mlaku Muter's motion. (2) The main is the part where the dancer moves from the pose to the last joint motion and throws sampur towards the male dancer. (3) Then the final part is the part where the dancer improvises with her partner until finally posing acrobatically.

The space of dancers is the farthest limit which can be reached by the dancers. The movement space of Gandaria dance is very dynamic that is adjusting the floor pattern. floor pattern or floor design, which is a form that is danced on the floor by dancers, where dancers move from one place to another, using straight and curved lines, which are developed into squares, or rectangles, zig zags, and circle, so dance comes alive [10].
