Analysis of Developmental Financial Assistance System for Poor Family Students

Ruida KE, Jian LIU*
Wenzhou Medical University

Abstract: The school is the cradle of cultivating higher talents. It is not only responsible for teaching and educating people, but also to strengthen and perfect the service system, improve the service quality and service efficiency, so as to create a harmonious and stable learning environment for college students. The construction of developmental funding system can not only promote the common development of all students, but also help poor college students to develop comprehensively. This paper will analyze the concept of developmental funding, and explain the optimization ideas of developmental funding system for poor family college students, hoping to provide a series of reference opinions for the improvement and construction of developmental funding system, and effectively promote the healthy development of poor college students.

Keywords: Family poverty; College students; Developmental support

DOI: 10.47297/wspiedWSP2516-250009.20200409

1. Introduction

Because many poor college students in families lose their access to education because of their economic conditions, the education department and schools are constantly strengthening the attention to the financial support of poor college students in families. Education departments and schools hope not only to provide flexible financial assistance to college students, but also to promote their physical and mental health while providing financial subsidies. This also makes the

About the author: Ruida KE (2000-07) ,male, Han Nationality, Zhangzhou, Fujian, Wenzhou Medical University, undergraduate cours, research direction: ideological and political education for college students.
Jian LIU (1983-01), male, Han Nationality, Yantai, Shandong, Wenzhou Medical University, lecturer, dean of Student Affairs office, postgraduate education, master’s degree, research direction: ideological and political education for college students.
Funded project: Wenzhou philosophy and social science planning project in 2020 (From the perspective of demand theory: “on demand funding” development funding model construction and Practice Research, Numbe: 20wsk265).
developmental funding system gradually pay attention to and pay attention to. In the process of development, schools must strengthen the improvement of the developmental funding system in order to make the poor college students receive equal educational opportunities. And truly reflect the fairness of education and educational justice.

2. The Concept of Developmental Funding

A perfect developmental funding system will not only subsidize college students, but also strengthen the spiritual level of college students. According to the Research on the Concept and Management System of Developmental Financial Assistance for Poor Students in Colleges and Universities, the principle of fairness should guide the development of financial aid. Developmental funding attaches great importance to the spiritual support of students, hoping to help students improve their comprehensive quality and comprehensive ability through poverty alleviation projects. This novel funding system also needs advanced funding concepts and diversified funding channels to support. At the same time, when schools subsidize students, they should fully respect their subjectivity, not only respect their willingness to develop, but also help students receive financial assistance in an independent and equal environment. Only in this way can we improve the effectiveness and science of financial aid and lay the foundation for the long-term effective development of poor college students.

3. Optimizing the Developmental Financial Assistance System for Poor College Students

(1) Updating and refining the concept of developmental funding

The continuous renewal of the concept of developmental funding can effectively improve the efficiency and quality of funding, but also can truly show the fairness of education. First of all, the overall development of poor students as the focus of funding. For example, the government has developed a subsidy policy for poor college students, which not only innovates the mechanism of student loans and grants, but also ensures the positive and healthy development of poor students. The promotion of relevant government policies is not only conducive to the common action of schools and society, but also conducive to the continuous improvement of the developmental funding system. Secondly, we should strengthen the respect for the main consciousness of college students. For example, it can guide the poor college students to set up a positive idea of receiving assistance, so that they can scientifically and reasonably allocate the relevant funding resources, and also realize the free development of college students. At the same time, schools should fully realize that developmental funding is not only funding and relief, but also strengthen cooperation with the state, and build a scientific funding policy, so as to effectively use student funds and enhance the value of funding.

(2) Improving poverty level determination and constructing network sharing platform

The family situation and personal economic situation of poor college students will change to some extent, so it is difficult to identify and divide the degree of poverty. In order to strengthen the grasp of the real-time dynamic situation of poor college students, we must strengthen the care and love of college students, which can not only lay the foundation for the perfection of the subsidy system, but also make the subsidy funds play the greatest role. For example, schools can build a perfect information funding platform, which should include not only the family situation of college students who are very poor, but also the specific address of the family, the relevant poverty records and the records of the financial assistance. At the same time, the relevant funding platform information can be shared with the government and work-study employing enterprises, so as to ensure the maximum help for poor college students. However, the school should also strengthen the protection of the information of poor college students, must ensure the security of the information independent platform, in order to ensure the privacy security of every student.

(3) Improving the sense of cost sharing and perfecting the multi-in-one funding system

Although our country has established the university student development aid system, but the related system still needs to further consummate and plan, can make the aid work more flexible. Schools can strengthen the establishment of cost sharing consciousness, not only to use relevant financial funds for funding work, but also to call on society and enterprises to join the funding system, so as to ensure the adequacy of funding. At the same time, mobilizing the whole society to participate in the funding can also increase the coverage of developmental funding and help more poor college students to get equal access to education. Moreover, the government should also strengthen interaction and cooperation with schools, and strive to continuously promote the improvement of funding policies, which is also conducive to ensuring the smooth development of developmental funding, and actively train talents for the overall development of morality, intelligence, body, beauty and labor for the country.

4. Conclusion

Strengthening the financial aid to the poor college students can not only effectively reflect the fairness of education, but also ensure that more talents can grow up in a harmonious educational environment. Education is strong, education is strong. Higher education can not only train high-quality compound talents, but also promote national development and social progress. Therefore, the government, schools, society and so on have the obligation to continuously promote the development of the funding system. At the same time, our country can also draw lessons from the advanced experience of foreign countries in the construction of the development subsidy system, and according to the development policy of our country, it can be properly optimized and innovated to ensure that it can promote the healthy growth of poor college students.

Works Cited

[1] Liu Jiayao, Lu Yao. “On the Model of Developmental Subsidy Education in Colleges and Universities under the Background of Internet +” [J]. Guangxi quality Supervision Bulletin 2019(11):57-59.
[2] Xu Wei, Zhang Yang. “A Study on Multi-level Guidance and Cultivation Counter-measures of University Supported Students from the Perspective of Developmental Financial Assistance” [J]. Heilongjiang Livestock and Veterinary Medicine, 2016(08):196-198.